

Emily Hancock

Université Paul Sabatier,
Toulouse
FRANCE

Emily is an English-language teacher and Erasmus coordinator in sport at the Université Paul Sabatier in Toulouse. A member of the Department of Languages on campus, she works in the faculty of Sport Science and Human Movement. Her main interests are in teaching English for specific purposes (adapted activity and health, sport management, training and PE teaching). Before working as an English teacher in the sports department, she coordinated the medical English curriculum at the medical school in Toulouse. She has now been working exclusively at the Sports Science faculty for the last 8 years. In her leisure time, she likes fitness classes, yoga, swimming and walking her Golden Retriever. Having grown up in upper New York State, she enjoys spending summers with her family along Seneca Lake in the Finger Lakes.

My Topics for the 24th International Teaching Week:

- 1) ENGLISH THROUGH SPORT: How Language and Sport Work Together!
- 2) TEACHING SITUATIONS IN ENGLISH: Workshops for (future) PE Teachers/
