

Simona Šafaříková

Palacký University Olomouc, Faculty of Science

Simona is both alumni and employee of Palacký University Olomouc. She graduated from both the Faculty of Science (Bachelor in Geography/Geoinformatics, 2001) and the Faculty of Physical Culture (Masters in PE + Geography Teaching, 2007). In 2013 she got her Ph.D. at the Faculty of Physical Culture in the field of Kinanthropology.

Since 2008 she's been working as an assistant professor at the Department of Development and Environmental Studies of the Faculty of Science.

She primarily focuses on the field of development in Asia and on the role of sport in development incl. researching its impacts. She also works in Global Development Education (GRV) and prepares volunteers for stays outside Europe. She supports using qualitative research methods and participatory approaches in evaluation.

Simona Šafaříková's topic for the 13th International Teaching Week:

Movement Games as a Supportive Tool in Sport & Development (a practical lesson)