

Nemanja Stanković

University of Niš, SERBIA

Nemanja is an Assistant Professor at the Faculty of Sport and Physical Education, University of Nis, and he currently teaches Combat Sports and Self-defence on a bachelor level and Performance Analysis on a PhD level.

His life is dedicated to judo, currently as a coach (International Judo Federation instructor license) and a professor, before as an active competitor and a member of Serbian national team (U17, U21, U23).

His main research areas are:

- Performance analysis in combat sports
- Injuries in combat sports: epidemiology and prevention

Topics for the 14th International Teaching Week:

- 1. Introduction to Performance Analysis in Sports
- 2. Learning Ukemi (Safe Fall) as a Quality Tool for Injury Prevention in a Daily Life Activities (practical class)